DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4, 7, 8 and 11-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kikuchi (US 5,921,974 A) in view of Valentin et al. (USPAP 2002/0183706 A1).

Regarding claim 1, Kikuchi teaches a diaper (1) with legs (5), comprising:

a sheet of material having a central portion defining an interior surface and an exterior surface, a front waist panel (2), a rear waist panel (3) and a crotch region (area between (2) and (3)) connecting the waist panels (2, 3), the waist panels (2, 3) defining a waist opening (13), the crotch region defining a pair of thigh openings (defined as the very top portion of legs where they open to the interior crotch portion of the diaper);

two legs (5) attached to the thigh openings of the central portion;
elastic material disposed between the lower part of the legs (14) and at least a portion of the thigh openings (see figure 9, below).

Valentin et al. teach a diaper (34) having rear, and optionally, front, waist arches (42)(see figure 2D, below)(¶s 0065-0069). These waist arches protect against leakage (¶ 0008).

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to add the waist arches of Valentin et al. to the diaper of Kikuchi in order to provide enhanced protection from leakage

Regarding claims 2 and 3, Valentin et al. teach elastic material (48) incorporated into the upper edge of the arch(es) (figure 2D).

Regarding claim 4, Kikuchi teaches a pair of fasteners (11) disposed on the rear waist panel (3) for fixing the rear waist panel (3) to the front waist panel (2)(figure 9).

Regarding claim 7, Kikuchi teaches absorbent material (8) disposed between the backsheets (6) and topsheets (7) of the legs (5) and central portion.

Regarding claim 8, Kikuchi teaches an absorbent core (8) arranged longitudinally in the central portion (figure 9).

Regarding claim 11, Kikuchi teaches a front waist panel (2) permanently secured (11) to the rear waist panel (3)(figure 9).

Regarding claim 12, Kikuchi teaches an elastic gather (19) at the bottom of the legs (5)(figure 9).

Regarding claim 13, Kikuchi teaches elastic material which joins the legs (5) the the crotch portion at thigh openings (see marked figure 9, above).

Regarding claims 14 and 15, Valentin et al. teach elastic material (48) incorporated into the upper edge of the arch(es)(figure 2D).

Regarding claim 16, Kikuchi teaches an elastic gather (19) at the bottom of the legs (5)(figure 9).

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kikuchi and Valentin et al. as applied to claims 1-4, 7, 8 and 11-16 above, and further in view of Weisman et al. (4,673,402).

Kikuchi and Valentin et al. do not teach multiple layered absorbent cores.

Weisman et al. teach multiple layered absorbent cores which are used to provide enhanced absorption and wicking (Abstract).

At the time of the invention, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the multiple absorbent core layers of Weisman et al. with the diaper of Kibuchi and Valentin et al. in order to enhance the diapers absorbing ability.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 5, 6 and 10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
